

Lecture 6.2 Programming Exercise

Write a program called ReadBinaryFileExercise.java that reads the binary file products.dat that was created in the last programming exercise and displays the product information on the standard output. Do not make any assumptions about how many data records are stored in the file.

Once you have your program working you may compare your solution to the sample solution provided in the course downloads folder.